THREAT TO DEBT REPAYMENT PROGRAM AT BIG DIPLOMAT

obliged to carry them in the absence of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Neville Chamberlain. The Chancellor is scheduled to address the House on the entire debt problem at 6 p. m. (3 p. m. E. D. T.).

WAIT ON ROOSEVELT

Although word went around that the new law was awaiting further word from President Roosevelt and consequently would not appear until late, the House was crowded at the opening.

BALDWIN STATEMENT

The speaker ruled London out of order.

The persistent efforts of London finally extracted a statement from Baldwin.

There are very definite reasons, the former premier said, why the Chancellor's statement on the debt cannot be made before 6:30 p. m. (12:30 p. m. E. D. T.).

It is understood that an important announcement of the debt will be made in Washington simultaneously with Chamberlain's statement.

Meanwhile, factious lobbies and the back benches seethed with indignation.

It was believed Chamberlain was waiting for President Roosevelt's action.

His proposal for a $500,000,000 to $100,000,000 per payment on the capital account pending all-around settlement.

The cabinet's decision apparently means that for the first time since the debt was funded—with the exception of the 1919-20 years—extended by the United States under the Hoover administration—Britain will fail to make full payment on time.

In connection with the decision, it was recalled that when Britain failed over the last installment of $65,500,000 last December, Chancellor Chamberlain sent notice that Britain considered the debt payment that would be made next spring.

It was his plan to apply the next payment, due June 15, on whatever new agreement might be reached between debtor and creditor.

Italy and Smuts Back England on Debt Stand

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

Geological Museum, London, June 12 (INS)—Simultaneously with Chamberlain's determination of the debt payments to the United States under the Baldwin agreement, the World Economic conference...

Parley Dragged by Hours of Oratory

London, June 12 (AP)—The hours of oratory and the tedious talk, translation of the speeches into English, dragged the world economic conference.

Speeches are limited to 15 minutes each, but the French and Italian take up equal periods, each delegate takes up twice that time.

ence listened for hours today to the oratory of world statesmen.

Most of them supported Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald's plan for debt reduction on the basis of the League agreement, which settled reparations at a time on the dollar.

MacDonald then called Premier Edouard Daladier of France, who followed him, and then the Italian, Vittorio Emanuele, and the Japanese, Gen. Tanaka.

MacDonald's speech was the first in the series of speeches on the debt problem.

He placed controlled production as secondary to stabilization of the price level.

He then turned to the economic difficulties which he termed "the pyramid of debt," and said "we must make the machine the servant of man, instead of man the servant of the machine."

"Economic agreements are impossible until an insatiable debt is provided."

"What would you think of an engineer who would work with an idle rubber foot?"

Then the French leader drew a gloomy picture of the economic situation, declaring the world is heading straight for a catastrophe unless there is a complete collaboration.

SMUTS SCOLDING U. S.

Gen. Smuts asserted: "The League conference a year ago placed the gravest responsibility where it belongs—on the shoulders of the United States. The United States has failed to take its line."

Viscount Lath, representing Japan, pledged his government's wholehearted cooperation during the conference.

Japan, through the veteran statesman, declared for restoration of the gold standard—with reservation such as Great Britain and the United States might favor.

Viscount Lath touched on the silver problem, declaring that "in view of her trade connections with silver-using countries, Japan will propose for appropriate solution of the silver problem."

NO AMERICAN AGENCY

While these deliberate and direct gestures were being made to America, the United States was being left out of the picture.

McDonald's speech was the first in the series of speeches on the debt problem.

He placed controlled production as secondary to stabilization of the price level.

He then turned to the economic difficulties which he termed "the pyramid of debt," and said "we must make the machine the servant of man, instead of man the servant of the machine."

Digs at U. S. Stop London Parley

London, June 12 (AP)—Blunt talking which kept the delegates stirred, characterized today's burst of oratory at the economic conference.

PREMIER DALADIER OF FRANCE—Dragged together toward the apex, the people of the world will find relief only in common action.

FINANCE MINISTER JUNG OF ITALY—"Economic isolation must end."

GEN. SMUTS OF THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA—"The League conference, year ago placed grave responsibility where it belongs—on the shoulders of the United States."

Viscount LATH OF JAPAN—"The good will and kind efforts of President Roosevelt paved the way for solution of the world's vital questions."

Every section of the country knows the benefits of good roads.

Improved highways not only aid in the rapid transport of commerce and farm products, build up trade and encourage industry, but pay big dividends to every class in the community.

One of the greatest assets to the entire country would be one broad, permanently paved, adequately maintained trunk line highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

We already have thousands of "feeders" for such a road, but the trunk line is broken by many gaps and detours.

With more than 90 per cent of the construction cost going for labor and materials (an established fact in road building), to what better use could the Federal Administration put its unemployment relief funds? The answer is NONE.

reference to this subject by saying that the matter could not be dealt with by the conference; but on top of that he emphatically expressed notice that the nations concerned must have to settle it without delay.

It is feared that the very inception of this vexatious question may not get the conference off to a happy, agreeable start. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State of the United States, American public opinion announced arriving that as far as America is concerned, the question must be settled in Washington, where as a President he took the lead in the negotiations.

The Senate banking subcommittee charged the investigation decided to continue hearings this month instead of waiting until fall when the inquiry into J. P. Morgan & Co. will be resumed.

The committee agreed to include the House National investigation along with the others in the hearings beginning June 25.

Jenny Dolly to Go Under Knife at Paris

Paris, June 12—Jenny Dolly, of the famous dancing team of Dolly Sisters, will be operated on tomorrow in an attempt to aid her recovery from injuries received in an auto accident two months ago.

In the accident, her face was disfigured and until last week, it was feared that nothing could be done.

Following a consultation of three French surgeons last week, it was announced that the famous dancer, would undergo the operation.

There were indications the session might be prolonged through the week. Administration leaders, seeking once more to force a new compromise acceptable all the way round were made.

The House then adjourned the conference report on the Glass-Steagall banking reform bill, with 120 Democratic senators pledging themselves in a round robin not to vote for final adjournment until it was sent to the White House.

Senate insurgents demanded the industrial recovery bill be sent back to conference in order that three Senate amendments might be restored.

The independent officers appropriation bill, with its fund for veterans' payments, was discussed in conference. The deadlock position of the conference between administration leaders and strong insurgent groups.

SECRET HAVERHILL GIRL WED TO YOUTH IN FLORIDA

Miss Hurn, Daughter of Haverhill Power Official

Haverhill, June 13.—Undisturbed by the broken romance of her anxiety parents, Dorothea Hurn, 16-year-old daughter of George W. and Mrs. Florence Parsons Hurn, was secretly wed in Florida last November. It was learned here today.

The secret bride is the daughter of George W. Hurn of Winchester, Bradford, wealthy head of the Haverhill Electric Light Co., organizer and many times president of the Chamber of Commerce, choir and musical singer and social leader.

WED IN SECRET
Since the separation of her parents, three years ago, Dorothea has made her home with her mother at St. Petersburg, Fla., and was wed by the ceremony that gave her into custody of her mother.

In November she slipped away to Bradenton, Fla., and was wed to James D. Dowling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Dowling, who are neighbors of Mrs. Hurn at St. Petersburg.

Dorothea was a girl of 15 when the marital troubles of her parents were first aired in January, 1928. At that time Mrs. Hurn, who was active in social circles, filed suit for alienation of her husband's affections against Ida Blauer, a 35-year-old nurse. A suit for separation from her husband was also filed.

SUIT NEVER TRIED

The couple agreed to the separation without appearance in court and the alienation suit was never brought to trial. Mrs. Hurn was granted alimony of $3000 a year. Last fall Hurn made a plea for a reduction in the alimony but was opposed by counsel for Mrs. Hurn. At that time he was severely questioned on his living expenses and revealed among other things that he spent as high as $150 a year on cigars.

The couple also have a son, Eddie Hurn, who was not considered for support or custody because he was 22 years old at the time of his parents' separation.

MATTER TAKES OFF FOR HOME

By The Associated Press
Twenty-five Italian planes, carrying 25 men including Gen. Italo Balbo, air minister of Italy, will take off from Orbetello tomorrow for a huge mass flight to Chicago. As the squadron was poised for flight, the American globe-trotter, Jimmy Matter, started for Nome, Alaska, from Khabarovsk, Siberia. Weather being bad it was thought he would make a short stop at Portovenise.

Capt. J. K. Boyd and two companions were forced down in mud flats near St. Mary, Haiti, Monday, short of Haiti, their goal in their nonstop goodwill flight from New York. They were not hurt, and their plane suffered no damage.

Capt. Mariano Ruben and Lt. Joaquín Collar, flying in Havana from Camaguey, Cuba, where they landed Sunday after a flight from Seattle, Spain. J. Scott Bernhart, an American, and Ernesto Samped, a Colombian, landed their two planes at Bogota, Colombia, after a four-stage flight from St. Louis, Mo. Favorable weather was awaited by Stephen Darius and Stanley G. Roma before starting on a 435-mile flight from New York in Lithuania.

FIRE CRACKERS, SAYS DEPUTY

It was "a bunch of firecrackers" that sounded like three shots when Deputy Supt. King left Station 2, Mills st., after addressing transferred sergeants and patrolmen yesterday.

At least, so Deputy King said today, explaining that remnants of the firecrackers were found in the car. Some officers in the line set them off and threw them out a window, the deputy explained.

He does not know who did it but expects to find out sooner or later.

Every second man on Black Bay streets early today was not a policeman, although it seemed so to those who keep late hours.

For the first time in years, 27 patrolmen guarded the district against the ordinary average of 15, due to the shakeup.

Twenty-four of the 27 men were new to the district, and several had quite a time locating patrol boats. At roll call, they all appeared, to the surprise of their superior who figured on at least a half a dozen getting lost.

PROPAGANDA OF FEAR IN U. S. OVER WORLD PARLEY BARED

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Famous Author and Diplomat and former U. S. Ambassador to Italy, Richard Child, of Universal Service, Inc.

Two absurdities about the London conference are going the rounds.

Richard Washburn Child

One is that the London conference is balancing the fate of the world on the tip of the nose. The other is that the United States will lose material if the conference fails to get anywhere. Except for bankers, grocers, and propagandists, no sane person in the world of fixers swimming mostly in their own foam, Washington is well aware of these distortions.

The danger of war in Europe, it is true, is a more solid ghost than it has been for some years. This is because depression makes for restlessness and coughs up in the surface the only thing—battering leaders. The most extreme of their followers want the leaders to roar and then make good the roar.

Good sense, however, even has the ear of the swashbuckler particularly when his sword is made of tin and he faces the strongest land fighting force the world has ever seen. Leaders may sometimes go to war as the only means of keeping leadership. But this notion is a little old-fashioned. Today the billboard may roar but inside the tent the lion is likely to talk like a good kitty as Professor Dodge did our new ambassador to Germany probably will discover.

NO SAVIOUR PROMISED
Great, among other causes for war, remain the inter-political, racial, and internal-politics factors. Economic competition may come to be the sole cause for war. It is growing as Secretary Hull foresees it. But the wildest dreams as to settlements of currencies, trade barriers, movement of capital and world prices do not forecast an elimination of economic rivalry. It would be sad if it did because the world would drop to a common standard of living, low indeed so far as America is concerned.

Since the London conference at its best would be no saviour of the world from war, it would not suppress the most important form of war, which the world is learning now.

The new form is not war by declaration and conflict between two armies but war by propaganda to stir up internal strife, to make revolutions to damage the other ally by worm rather than by knife—a subject in which the League of Nations may hardly have even to exhibit its fashions as it has in cases of open, armed, officially directed "aggression."

Even if all war sprang from a single competition, the removal of a few economic weapons would more cause economic competition or war arising therefrom to cease, than will the removal of certain kinds of armaments. This is because implements and methods are not all decisive.

If you take away guns, men who choose to fight will still have pitchforks and potato-peelers. When currency exchange tricks are revealed, other ways will be found for economic rivalry.

LOSE LESS THAN OTHERS
Nor will the failure of the London conference, in case it occurs, mean that the welfare of nations has been impaired. Still says that it will be. He says as out of good heart and liberality. But who is to pass upon the desires and the welfare of other nations? They, and not the United States! We can present a thesis of economic internationalism. But suppose the other says:

"We had. We don't want it." Then we will be faced with the question: "What do we lose?" The answer, as shrewd observers know, is that we lose much less than others. Our property in some part may depend on selling surplus abroad—particularly agricultural. Exporting surplus gives purchasing power to the farmer and his pur-

Wakefield Plans

Big Celebration

Wakefield plans the biggest celebration in the town's history on July 4th and committee are hard at work arranging the plans. Airplanes and war tanks, fire apparatus, military and civic bodies are to participate. The day will be observed as Community Day and will be aimed to keep Wakefield people at home for the celebration and bring in all of its neighbors.

chasing power helps to sustain industrial production. But our whole total export business always has been a tiny fraction of our national production.

AND FOR FITS SAKE
WHOSE ARE THOSE VOICES WHO SAY THAT IF THE LONDON CONFERENCE FAILS WE MUST CLOSE UP OR CURTAIL OUR EXPORT BUSINESS? This is the current propaganda doctrine that some keen observers in Washington would like to trace to its origin.

U. S. OFFERS PEACE
The exact contrary is true. The failure of the London conference is a call to us for the stiffest kind of battle for foreign markets. We have the agricultural surplus. We have the production shop of the world.

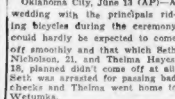

We have offered the others a kind of economic peace; we can, if need be and if we learn the intricate strategy, give them an experience in economic war which will make their hair curl.

The situation in foreign trade is precisely as it is about disarmament. If the others do not want disarmament, we can build a navy to defend us against two navies, and do it out of taxes on a short list of unneeded luxuries.

Washington is realizing that we have offered political and economic peace up to the point of live danger to our freedom. Now it is up to the others, both at Geneva and in London.

confronted on the century-old courthouse and tried to jump into the room which was only 100 feet away. "There was a concert of emotion," she said, "and I was alerted each other throughout." The mother of the boys, Mrs. Harriet, who is 60 years old, has a heart ailment which she said she had for generations—passed from her mother.

NAMED HIS BROTHER

As Crowley's battered home pointed after him, evidence in the case of the boys was being taken on the May afternoon of her abduction in being shown to the 12 typical Cape Cod fishermen, mechanics and farmers that over objections of defense counsel, and Judge Hanly ordered Crowley to confess in the courtroom and it was agreed that Mr. and Mrs. Crowley, Peggy, and William V. Lee, Crowley's business partner, should not be in the room except as witnesses.

Brig-Gen. Daniel Needham, who as head of the state police directed the search for Peggy, was here today and was permitted to remain in the room with other police witnesses.

Nelson Bessie, surgeon, was the first witness called. Peggy was not expected to take stand before Thursday at the trial of the case before the jury, but she was called to the stand to testify.

Mystery surrounds the identity of some 15 witnesses who will be called in defense of the accused.

How It Feels to Be 'Dead,' New Query of Medical Body

Milwaukee, June 13 (AP)—An extraordinary series of scientific efforts to find out if there is any life beyond this life and what it feels like to be dead, were revealed today at the second session of the American Medical Association convention. Investigation of these hitherto insoluble problems was made possible by the fact that Shakespeare's celebrated description of death as "that bourne from which no traveler returns" is no longer strictly true. About 100 persons who have gone into the "great beyond"—who have been medically, biologically, physically and legally "dead"—have been brought back into life and then systematically questioned about their experiences on that "other shore."

This was disclosed by Dr. Albert

"SELF-RESPECT 'KINGS' WIDOW AIDS JOBS" FOR 150

Work for an average of 150 persons a week for 18 months has been furnished under the Work Relief Fund of the North Bennett St. Industrial School which has provided a total income of $3,000 for the unemployed, according to a report issued today.

Officials of the school pointed out that work of a type which encourages unemployed persons to maintain their self respect could be provided for at least 150 more if funds were available.

The slogan of the Work Relief Fund is "A day's work instead of a handout."

The plan, formulated by the directors of the school, interferes in no way with work of man now employed. It does not compete with trade unions, but puts the talents of the unemployed to work in projects which otherwise would never be undertaken.

For example, if a hospital or charitable institution is in need of painting or repairs, but lacks funds to undertake the work alone, the North Bennett St. school operates under the following plan.

The institution furnishes the material needed, if possible. The workers are furnished by the school, which pays their wages.

This plan, it was pointed out, is superior to giving a dead mass of the unemployed by providing a means of earning money to interest the legislature in formulating an unemployment relief program along the same lines.

The North Bennett St. school and the work fund depend on the voluntary contributions of those interested in the splendid type of constructive welfare work it is doing.

The school is supported by some of Boston's leading society members who have been working quietly and effectively for years in a philanthropic endeavor which benefits to the community are incalculable.

Allen Brantley, of Columbus ave., South End, colored master of ceremonies at the Cotton Club in Tremont st., was called to the stand.

He was taken to the stand by Capt. Stephen J. Fishery of Bowdoin Crossing Station, who ushered in the government witnesses and escorted them out again with the exception of clock-work. No witness was left unguarded.

HEAVY GUARD ALERT

Brantley, dupe and trim and on the stand and answered briefly the questions put to him by Doyle in direct examination.

The master of ceremonies testified that he went to work at the club when it opened last Oct. 4. He knew James Coyne, also under charge of playing Solomon and now sought by police, because Coyne came in work in the club some time after the opening.

SAW SUSPECTS ENTER

He also knew Moore and Scully, who are also sought by police. Brantley said, and he knew the three defendants in the premiere cage.

Brantley testified that he was in the club on the night of Jan. 24 and that Burke, Karlson, O'Donnell, Coyne, Moore and Scully entered about midnight and sat together at a table. Brantley went over and sat with them for a time, he said.

The witness said that Burke had a gun thrust into the waistband of his trousers and that he told Brantley to hide the gun, as if "nighttime" or "someday."

Brantley did not remember the exact time that Solomon arrived at the club, but he thought it was about two hours after the six had arrived. The witness said he had known Solomon six or seven years. Solomon was with a party, according to Brantley, and they took a table.

SAW "KINGS" LAST WALK

Over numerous objections by defense counsel, the witness said he saw Burke get up from his table, go over to Solomon's table, speak to him and then return to his own group, where Burke threw out his

2 STORMS END
HEAT WAVE

Two thunderstorms, one last night and the second early today, accompanied the heat pressure area from the West which brought relief to eastern Massachusetts today after five days of sweltering heat.

Coolness, perceptible at midnight, became more pronounced in the early hours after a brief but violent electrical storm. By daybreak the storm had passed, and the promise of fair and cooler weather for today and tomorrow seemed due to be fulfilled.

The first storm last night ignored Boston entirely, concentrating on the southeastern section of the state and the cape area. Just after today the city was treated to a violent storm. Damage was done by lightning in several sections and two fires, caused by lightning, resulted in damage estimated at $500.

The city owned stone crushing plant in Cline St., Lynn, was struck by lightning in the rain-squalling storm. Five bricks cut irregularly and caused $500 damage.

The other fire was in the Swedish Methodist Church, Brockton. The steeple was struck by lightning, and damage estimated at $1000 was caused to the church by the resulting fire. Weymouth's lighting system was also affected by the storm, and the town was without lights for two hours.

Yesterday's heat set the mark of the heat wave. The mercury soared to a record mark of 93 for the day, the hottest since Sept. 1931. Two deaths were reported in the Greater Boston area and several persons were reported as stricken by the heat.

N. E. Apple Crop
Fine, Peaches Hit

New England's apple crop prospects are excellent, the United States and New England departments of agriculture, reported today, but the peach crop has suffered from frost in many sections and a light crop is probable.

Weather conditions in New England during May "were rather unfavorable to satisfactory crop growth," the joint report stated. "Heavy April rains delayed the planting of grain crops and the condition of these crops on June 1 was generally somewhat below normal," it adds.

Another Maiden
Officer Loses Dog

For the second time within a week Maiden police have shot a dog owned by a member of the department. This time, however, they knew who owned the dog, but were unable to have him respond to care for it.

The dog was taken ill in the Graziopoli apartment, and police were called. Patrolman Graziopoli was investigating a case and could not be located so Patrolman J. C. Mahoney responded and shot the dog.

A. H. Sargent, Jr.,
Buried Tomorrow

Funeral services for Arthur Hewes Sargent, Jr., of Clinton St., Brookline, will be held tomorrow afternoon at St. Auburn Chapel. Sargent, a Yale graduate, class of 1914, was 40 years old. He died following an operation for appendicitis. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Fredericka Tufis Sargent, and two daughters, Joanne and Fredrica Sargent.

Mr. Durigan Finds Relief in
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Here is his enthusiastic letter:
"Am 70 years of age, and for 40 of these years there never was a week but what I had to take a pill or some kind of cathartic.

"I took everything, but gained only temporary relief. Until last spring my daughter, who is a nurse in a hospital, brought me some Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

"At the end of the week, I knew I had something that was it, and I kept on taking it. I haven't taken a cathartic since. I can eat meat any time, as often as I like, or any other kind of food, and no constipation." Mr. L. H. Durigan, 6811 Buffalo Ave., Jacksonville, Florida.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to excite the intestines, and vitamin B to help muscle tone. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much safer than patent medicines. Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in serious cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Sold in the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

EL SHOWS BIG SWAMPSCOTT
REVENUE GAIN VETS IN MIDDLE

The monthly report of General Manager Edward Dana, of the Boston Elevated, reveals operations and net revenue of the road took a big jump during May as compared to the figures for May, 1932. However, the road is still far from meeting the cost of service.

For last month net revenue before taxes and other deductions was $799,710.41, an increase over April and over May, 1932, when net revenue was $532,416.60.

However, the report showed that receipts last month failed by the sum of $102,500.54 to meet full operating costs. Despite these figures the report points out that the road failed to meet full costs by $201,761.93.

Lightning Kills
Two on Picnic

New York, June 13 (AP)—Two members of a picnic party of five were killed and another seriously injured when lightning struck a tree on Pelham Parkway, the Bronx, under which the five men had sought shelter.

Frank De Palo, 53, was killed instantly, and Frank Ellis, 40, died later at a hospital. Michael Levin, 30, was at Fordham Hospital with his left leg paralyzed.

Swampscott's police chief, Walter Reeves, and the board of selectmen have opposite views on what constitutes a gambling device, with the result that the James L. Stevens Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, finds itself in the middle today.

The selectmen gave the veterans a permit to set up "beans" and other games of chance at their building fund carnival which began last night in Phillips Park. Chief Reeves said he would not permit the games to be operated. He will confer with the selectmen today, but he is determined not to permit gambling of any kind at the carnival, he said.

Reach for a Lucky

-for always Luckies
Please!

A man's cigarette?

Well—here's why I enjoy Luckies

Somehow, I have always felt that it takes a really fine cigarette to please a man. And since many of the men whose judgment I value smoke Luckies . . . I reach for a Lucky, too. True, I enjoy Luckies' fine tobacco quality and their delicious mildness. But my real reason is perhaps a trifle feminine. Men may not appreciate this as much as a sensitive woman—but I'm particularly grateful to "Toasting" for that comforting assurance of purity. I've talked to many women about this—remember, a cigarette becomes an intimate thing with us, we place it between our lips. And so, perhaps, because I am a woman this is my woman's reason for always saying "Luckies Please!"

THIS IS LIFE

Repeal Assured--Vote Size Is Only Question

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

Today Massachusetts repudiates prohibition by at least five to one. The only question is the size of the vote. There is every reason to believe that by the end of the year we shall be free of this well-intentioned breeder of crime and disregard of law.

The rising tide of repeal marks definitely the declining power of the churches to force reform on our people. To judge from the utterances of local Protestant churchmen they are not yet aware of this. Like the Bourbons they learn nothing and they forget nothing, they still talk as they were talking thirty years ago, fifteen years ago, five years ago, last year, yesterday, today and forever.

Religion is suffering. Indeed, so far as statistics mean anything, religion is stronger today than ever before.

Recent statistics just published in the Christian Herald show that the churches have profited largely from the depression. It is good to note that something or somebody has profited.

All Creeds Show Large Increase

Figures declare that during the year 1932 the Protestant churches gained some 929,252 members over 13 years old. This increase of pretty near a million is undoubtedly impressive. The total membership of churches reached more than 50,000,000, including the Protestant and Eastern Catholic Churches (Greek, Russian, Armenian, etc.). I have no figures at hand for the Roman Catholic, though I remember recent figures showing large increases in that communion also.

The bulk of the Protestant increase comes from the 25 largest churches, with a gain of 922,000. The Baptists led all other denominations with gains of 347,353. Then came the Eastern Catholics with 22,237. The Lutherans gained 58,823. Curiously enough, that powerful denomination, the Methodists, gained only 94,607. The old revival spirit does not seem to be holding up there.

Most of this can be laid at the door of the depression. There can be no doubt that there is a close connection between prosperity and church going. A somewhat rabid old English rhyme expresses it:

"When the Devil was sick the Devil a monk would be,
When the Devil was well, the devil a monk was he!"

Change "sick" to "rich" and you have the story.

Amusements are expensive during hard times and the Church becomes once more the social center, as it used to be before the days of automobiles, movies and dance halls. Furthermore, the historic protest, held out particularly to the poor, are more attractive and more comforting than in the days when pay envelopes are fat and incomes plentiful. One need not insist that most of these converts are "foul weather" friends who will drop away when the economic sun shines again, although that will probably prove to be true in many cases.

But it is fair to state that the majority of these new members have come to the church for religious consolation, for comfort and help and companionship. Emphatically they have not come to it as an institution of reform, using its own membership to force legislation through to which many of its members are indifferent or hostile. I doubt if the church will find much comfort or firm support in its last stand fight against repeal. Repeal, for its threatened war on tobacco, its other projected campaigns.

Church Riders Facing Vicious Shake

Reform is in a bad way. The American people have been too thoroughly educated in the designs, the methods, and the results of the Theocracy to look with complacency on further continuance of its ideals. The Repeal victory in Indiana, though not much more than two to one, is an indication that the bucking horse of the citizenry wants to shake off its Methodist or Baptist rider, when that rider turns out to be a proper shaker, religion, its moral and disciplinary control by legislative act.

In spite of the heroic efforts now being made by the embattled Anti-Saloon League, the W. C. T. U. and the high command of the evangelical churches, I must be at all surprised to see that they have on their hands a revolt among their own members of the West and South which will annihilate them. The votes on repeal to be taken shortly will tell.

The reason is, of course, that the younger generation in those sections are becoming civilized. The power of the press has done its work. Magazines written and edited in the liberal East keep pouring in to the cotton and cow states. They cannot help having their missionary effect. The pictures they exhibit of a life liberal, tolerant, amusing, in a word civilized, cannot help affecting the young people brought up among the aridity of evangelical communities. Nor can the stories they tell of a land corrupted by crime and racketeering fail of their effect. The local devils may howl and whirl, but the wise men of the East are surely having their influence.

Barnard Dean Points the Way

They are learning, for instance, that it is a ridiculous piece of efficiency for a Baptist parson to censure publicly the President of the United States for his stand on the beer legislation. If popular education is doing anything it is teaching us that we are beyond allowing professional holy men to be the keepers of our conscience. The person, in particular, who is conscious of being reasonably well educated and reasonably well informed shrugs in weary contempt at this flood of patronizing ukases from the men who know what is better for us than we know ourselves.

We prefer, for instance, the point of view of Dean Gilder-alieve of Barnard, an educated woman speaking for educated people, when she says:

"I want the sale of alcoholic beverages of all kinds to be properly and lawfully regulated and restricted, and not carried on freely and illicitly, as at present, to put money into the pockets of bootleggers and gangsters. When prohibition was adopted I thought it a rather heroic and worthwhile experiment. But prohibition didn't prohibit. Therefore the good moral fight for repeal must not be given up at this juncture, just because the bottle deal must be won. We must not fail to give the last great push that will win the fight."

Even the church members, I guess, respect that kind of talk much more than they respect Dr. Barnard's censure of the President or the Baptists' resolve to boycott all places serving beer. Fifteen years ago that sort of dragging might have had some weight. It has little now!

REPEAL SWEEP IS PREDICTED IN LIGHT OF REPEAL VOTING TODAY—POLLS OPEN 10 A. M. TO 8 P. M.

Coast Guard Plans to Continue to Stop Liquor Flow

Although admitting they will be handicapped by the curtailment of equipment and personnel, coast guard officials today declared they would continue their efforts to prevent the flow of illicit liquor along the Massachusetts coast.

Capt. William H. Munier, head of the eastern division, pointed out that the loss of 325 men would undoubtedly affect the record made by the division. He stated, however, that the force remaining would still be on the job.

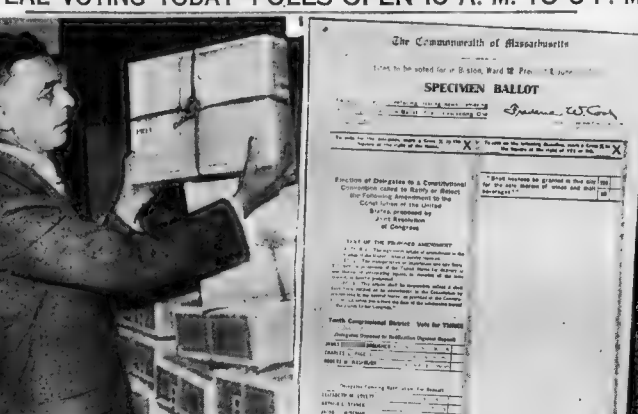

He declared that most of the seizures of liquor would be made by the coast guard boats and said 22 of these boats would remain in operation out of Gloucester and Woods Hole.

Meanwhile the work of cleaning out the various stations to meet the lowered personnel requirements, which are to be effective June 25, continues.

Chief among the protests are the new rules proposed to limit the number of licensed officers and those with permanent ratings. They declare the officers listed as "temporary" are receiving direct pay cuts with no consideration of service or ability. It is also claimed that 22 temporary, commissioned officers have been saved from cuts by being listed as "permanent" in the past two weeks.

Enlisted men, with pay slashed approximately 50 per cent, declare they will be unable to support their families on the new wage schedule. The men state they have lost shore liberty while on extended sea patrol and that they are receiving no compensation for this when they are being let out of service.

BAR CASES GET PRECEDENCE SLAYERS' PLEA TO FILL BENCH

Judge John C. Crosby in Suffolk Superior Court today demanded that all durometer cases brought against Boston attorneys, resulting from the investigation ordered two years ago by the court, take precedence over other cases.

Judge Crosby, who would order immediate trial of all such cases brought before him.

The statement was made following a plea by Atty. William McCarthy, representing a client whose name will not be revealed until the trial begins, to have the report of Special Commissioner Charles P. Carpenter recommended for further hearing.

Atty. Stephen Wrightington, who is prosecuting several of the durometer practice cases, opposed the recommendation.

The case was postponed until July 1.

Senate Favors Cutting Grand Juries in Grand Juries

The proposed amendment to include Suffolk County in the bill which would reduce the number of county grand jurors from 25 to 15 has been approved by the Senate. The bill originally passed did not include Suffolk County and was sent back to the Legislature by Gov. Ely.

The Senate yesterday passed the amendment, 22 to 11. A request for a roll call on the matter was made by Gov. Ely's request that Suffolk County be included was based on his belief the measure should include all counties.

LATE OPENING OF POLLS SET HANDICAP

Wet Forces in Drive to Pile Up Big Totals; Drys Are Active

By BERNARD A. DOWERY

Ballots which will decide the fate of the Eighteenth Amendment in Massachusetts dribbled and dripped or fell crumpled into ballot boxes today as wet and dry turned out to choose the delegates who are pledged to continue or to end the "noble experiment" in so far as this Commonwealth is concerned.

Early voting was light, due principally to the fact that polls in Boston and in many other cities and towns did not open until 10 a. m.

Early predictions, based on past records of Massachusetts voters in repeal of the Prohibition Act and the halfhearted pre-election battle of prohibitionists, indicated that the state would be listed as the 11th in the country favoring repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

VOTING FOR PRINCIPLE

Frank Finerman, president of the Boston chapter of the National Association of Women, and a group of speakers made a whirlwind tour of Roxbury, Jamaica Plain, Roslindale and West Roxbury today to get out the wet vote.

The only danger to an overwhelming victory in favor of repeal, Finerman said, "comes in the fact that many of the wet delegates are unknown to the voters. We are impressing on the electorate, however, that it is a principle, and not men, which they are voting today."

Boston is expected to do the bulk of its voting tonight, as the polls are open until 10 p. m. Even Mayor Curley was unable to finish his day's business.

Drys Are Voting

Voting in Ward 12 to 17, the Dorchester district, was light during the morning, not more than 100 ballots being cast in any precinct. The same was true in Ward 8 to 11 and 21.

Champions of the wet and dry causes among the early voters in Cambridge today, Mrs. Eleanor Tilton, noted crusader and boss dry advocate, cast her ballot early at the Brattle square station.

She said: "If the wet win it will be a principle, and not men, which they are voting today. The drys are, of course, the majority. The future is ours. I see little hope for a dry victory."

Jimmy Roosevelt, son of the President, who is a wet candidate for delegate in the Ninth Congressional District, voted with his wife in the Russell school, Greater Cambridge.

He was disappointed if it isn't an overwhelming wet victory," he said. "But I have hopes that it will be. Such a victory would be a strong patriotic move on the part of Massachusetts, and repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment would be a normal step toward temperance in the United States."

LIGHT VOTE OVER STATE

In Quincy, the advocates of repeal toured the city in a car with loud speakers attached through which the voters were urged to make sure and cast their votes. The voting in Quincy was light until about 6 p. m., when many workers took advantage of the lunch hour to vote.

Lowell reported a light vote and election officials expected that about 40 per cent of the normal registration of 40,000 would appear.

The building will be completed in 12 weeks, and each week will be open to public inspection. The model procedure for erecting a moderate priced house is the purpose of the exhibition.

Mayor to Start Model Home Work

In West Roxbury, Mayor Curley today turned first spadeful of earth at the site of the proposed model house to be erected by the Better Homes of America of which Mrs. James J. Curley is Massachusetts chairman.

The building will be completed in 12 weeks, and each week will be open to public inspection. The model procedure for erecting a moderate priced house is the purpose of the exhibition.

Mystery Girl

Here are personality points about Judith Allen, a Boston Cinderella, out with movie, and Hollywood's Mystery Girl at the moment.

Cecil B. DeMille says she has the screen it.

She is 29 years of age.

She has blue eyes and brown hair.

Her parents live in Boston, where the girl attended Girls' High school, and later a finishing school.

Father objected to stage career and made her agree to keep secret the family name.

Played in stock in New England as Mari Colman; then they changed it to Nancy Colman.

Gordon was another last name suggested, but DeMille finally settled on Judith Allen.

BOSTON GIRL LEAPS TO FAME

Mari Colman Is Rechristened Judith Allen as She Gets Lead in De Mille Film

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Cinderella still carries on. By a stroke of a good witch's wand, a Boston girl has been lifted from obscurity to movie stardom, and without one minute's previous film experience. She wins a long-term contract, her salary has already started, and she is to have the feminine lead in one of the big productions to be released in the new film year. Her screen name is Judith Allen, just conferred upon her at the Paramount studios; but it isn't her real cognomen. And behind that fact is a true-life story that has made the local lass Hollywood's Mystery Girl of the moment.

It is through the co-operation of a Hollywood friend that we are able to present this first real story of the new star. Bill Pine knows everything that worth while around the girl, holding a big job, he has ability, energy, enthusiasm, and a knack of absorbing and holding facts. So it is his doing that we are reporting for us that we over the details in one of the best items with the Boston angle, that Hollywood has ever turned out. Our tip has come from a note in Variety, stating that Mari Colman had been signed on by Paramount.

New Mari Colman is a Boston girl, a former student of the Girls' High school here. That was not her real name, but it was her stage name. Born in New York city, she was brought here as a child by her parents. From high school she attended a finishing school in this section, and her summer's spent with stock companies hereabouts. Broadway called her a year ago, she thought it did. But her stock company was a failure, and she turned to modeling for magazine illustrations, and for advertisements.

But the theater lure would not drop; she hired a car and went to the best he could do was secure a screen test. That was two months ago. The test was so good she was summoned to the Coast. Here fate brought her to the path of Cecil Blount De Mille.

She got the part of "The Sign of the Cross," he told the girl, "You're Judith Allen." And the more counsel played it.

Now about that real name of hers. Nobody in Hollywood knows it. Save only Judith, herself, of course. And in her tell why.

"It was my father," she said. "He didn't want an actress in the family. When I insisted, he made me change it. I would take another name and never reveal the family name. And I won't tell, and all this mystery Girl business won't make me."

The mother? Judith's mother doesn't disapprove; but the father, he has his way in this matter.

The parents are still living in Boston.

"It doesn't really matter, now, does it?" she asked. "I can't own my own, so the name doesn't count."

Gene James Rode Fast, But Not Far.

New York, June 13.—(U.S. Herald Tribune.)—The Yankees' new manager, George M. Steinbrenner, who graduated from the University of Wisconsin, has taken a college degree in the big league. Steinbrenner, who was born in the Bronx, has been in the big league since 1908, when he was 17 years old. He has been a player, a manager, and a scout for the Yankees. He has been a member of the Yankees' front office since 1928, when he was named general manager. He has been a member of the Yankees' front office since 1928, when he was named general manager. Harvard and Yale crews are up off the hard work this afternoon and tomorrow for the four mile crew classic on the Thames on Friday. A grand record in sprint races is held by the Yale crew, which broke the upstream record by several seconds a week ago. It is a far faster and smoother machine than that of a year ago.

HAGEN, SARAZEN AT RYDER CUP FLAG DAY RAUATE

RYDER TEAM IN DISSENSION ON EVE OF MATCH

By DAVIS J. WALSH
New York, June 13 (AP)—On the eve of its departure for England, the American Ryder Cup team is threatened today by dissension, with Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen the principal and active subscribers. They're openly hostile now. What they'll be by the time they land at Southampton for the international matches with the British, only those six days at sea can hope to divulge.

There's nothing like a few hours in the enforced intimacy of a great liner to chafe the more peckish, as to speak, and aggravate any grievance, whether real or fancied.

Come to think of it, there's a new twist to the deep and enduring antagonism of twin spirits attuned to the vibrations of harmony. Rather, their diuikes has been intimate, inattentive, somewhat unprovoked and inactive, after a little violent.

GENE WOULD LEAD

Sarazen, an open champion of public countries, during the past year, a distinction shared with Jones, wanted to be captain of the Ryder cup team. He even felt that automatically he should be captain. But Hagen is.

No not for nothing were those two lineages exchanged at North Shore last week during the national open championship.

Dispatching of a club attendant by Hagen with a chair to Sarazen out there on one of the late tea wasn't humorous nor was it intended to be. It was a grim jest.

The alighting references Sarazen had made "Old Man Hagen" had evidently rankled and when Hagen finished with a redoubtable 66 and Sarazen somewhere down on the left field foul line, he couldn't resist the liberal.

11-YEAR FETTER

Maybe, too, he was remembering that four-off day 11 years ago when Sarazen, then the boy wonder and now champion, was playing "world's championship match" with Hagen, the old. Hagen had been ahead over the first 30 holes, but a lengthy discussion over a technicality. If memory serves me, Hagen held that a leaf covering his ball should be moved. That referee said that this should not be. Sarazen said nothing. He stood at some distance, gazing blindly into space. His air said that he was bored by the triviality of it all.

Finally, to restore tranquility and keep the peace, they moved the objectionable ball and it was then that Sarazen spoke for the first time.

JUMPING JOE SHOULDERS A LOAD OF TROUBLE

In a perfect piece of football action, Jumping Joe Savoldi, Notre Dame product, throws a block at over-zealous champion Jim Browning in their title bout at the Yankee Stadium. Browning registers hurt resentment-hand over heart and a very pained expression. And notes Browning's eyes caving in under the lifting rush of Savoldi's charge. The title bout went to the time limit with Browning eventually getting the decision. Savoldi's far famed "drop kick" failed to topple the New York champion from his throne. But he did not discourage though. He'll start up the mat ladder with another Browning encounter as his goal as soon as possible.

LAST CALL FOR MAJOR TRADES

New York, June 13 (AP)—Clubs which wish to make behind-the-scenes moves in their ranks for the final pennant drive must do so on Monday, Thursday, the deadline for major league trading. Quite a few "trades" have been sent out and some of the proposed deals involve ranking stars of yesterday: Cleveland and the Phillies are reported to be open for an old-fashioned housecleaning. Walter Johnson want to give Cleveland a new deal, while the final club's embroiled owners of the Philadelphia players are said to be on the block.

The following players are said to be on the block: Cleveland—Vernon, Huddell, Barrett and Morgan. Brooklyn—Wright, O'Doul and Wilson, present and past National League batting champions.

Cubs—Babe Herman, Red Sox—Bob Weland, Phillies—Lewie, Phillies—Every body except Klein and Bartlett.

Cleveland wants to swap Earl Combs from the Yankees, who aren't interested unless Earl Averil is included in the deal. Washington may try to get Huddell. The Cubs and Dodgers are eager to grab Lewie. The Red Sox could use Bartlett. Trade negotiations between Brooklyn and the Phils are boiling. The Dodgers want Huddell and Combs.

35 per cent of May, 1921.
These levels hardly seem dan-

The Hitler Cult

How Long Will It Last

ADOLF HITLER

THIS WAS MADE TO HONOR HITLER'S BIRTHDAY

Adolf Hitler, Germany's new Chancellor and, for the time being, apparently complete dictator, recently celebrated his forty-fourth birthday. A great majority of Germans celebrated it with him. ENTHUSIASTICALLY.

Pictures of the dictator were distributed. Bar-reliefs of Hitler were made in tens of thousands and eagerly purchased throughout the nation. The lower picture shows a German workman pushing a wheelbarrow load of the Hitler likenesses.

The upper picture shows a rather curious porcelain plaque made by the State Porcelain Factory at Meissen and widely sold. It shows Hitler with his little "shee-brush" mustache emphasized a little too much, his name below and the swastika emblem below that. On his head perches a German eagle holding arrows in its claws. He is supposed to be protecting Hitler, or Hitler is supposed to be protecting him, or something like that. When patriotism breaks loose violently it is usually not too logical. The world looks at these interesting demonstrations, for which the Allies, with their brutally stupid Versailles Treaty, can blame themselves, and wonders how long the Hitler career will last, how soon this eagle will slip off and find another perch. There would seem to be better ones in Germany.

Just Folks

Wordsworth, in 1802

How slowly mortals learn! We come and go,
Repeating ever the same blunders o'er.
Once the great Wordsworth, sick at heart and sore,
Watching the pageantry of pomp and show
And the sham triumphs human strive to know,
Wrote this brief life man's avocation to deplore:
"Plain living and high thinking are no more."
And still for us the flowers he cherished grow.
Ever it seems his "homely beauty" waits
For men with rapturous ecstasy to find.
Fortune alone is welcome at our gates
And vainly tap the joys of gentler kind.
Yet with so little we could brave the fates
And find contentment were we so inclined.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

Your Vote Today Tells the Story

The gentleman in the upper right-hand corner of this drawing is the State of Massachusetts. He has his hand outstretched on the base of the pedestal which is TRUE TEMPERANCE—to be gained by REPEAL OF PROHIBITION. YOU can put him up there where he belongs. YOU can take him out of the debris and morass of prohibition, which is banditry, corruption, and one hundred other evils. You can give him his place in the sun of

TEMPERANCE, SOBRIETY and LAW and ORDER, along with the ten other states that have already decided this year to repeal prohibition. VOTE TODAY. The polls in Boston, if you happen to live here, are open from 10 o'clock until 8 tonight. The issue is clear and important. Put Massachusetts up there, in the light of temperance and honor, so the country may point to her and say, "MASSACHUSETTS, THERE SHE STANDS."

New York Day by Day

Dress of Celebrities

NEW YORK, June 13.—Many Manhattan celebrities cling to fixed standards of dress. Fannie Hurst, dressed in a flame of red, is as permanent in the sartorial galaxy as Amelia Earhart's evening gown of white. Julia Hoyt is invariably collared in black fur. And Dorothy Hall turned in white. Perhaps the most daring coiffure is exemplified by Peggy Fears, a tornado-ton of shoulder. Hair with twin-falls speaks. Claire Booth Luce is rarely archduchess, and Geraldine Farrar without a touch of jade. A long colored kerchief hangs from one of Lenore Ulric's bracelets. Irene Bordoni and Norma Terris feature Gay 90s, and Mrs. Frank Storr's emeralds are as much part of the Metropolitan opera as

Gatti-Casazi. Clara Bell Walsh's favorite color is tan, and May Allison Quirk and One Munson are fond of violet hues. Too, Miss Frances Perkins' tricorn hat! The most prized dress is the tailor clad Anne Morgan, and the toasty tourist Michael Strange. Adela Rogers St. John remains faithful to California outdoor influence, usually in tweeds. Then, of course, there's Lady Furness with her double circle of black "mourning pearls."

Ladies are no longer feverish to be classed as ravine beauties with plentiful "It." Instead they strive to fit the vastly over-rated "glamour." Doubtless this new desire has been implanted by the evening popularity of Katharine Cornell on the stage and Katherine Hepburn on the screen. Each has a broad face of ebullient paleness with extraordinarily, high cheek bones, faces portrait painters cherish, but unexciting to revive producers.

Few Katharines are so called by intimates. Miss Cornell is "Kit," Miss Hepburn "Katie" and Katherine Norris "Katie." A terrible way to treat so beautiful a name. There is variety of human interest among grave-stone luncheoners in the Trinity graveyard these warm days. Stenographers who spread their reports on weather worn slaps seem unaffected by the gloomy surroundings. Their chirp suggests the airy and one part creature was reading Havelock Ellis on Sex instead of perhaps Grey's Elegy. Interesting, too, that nearly all magazines seen were devoted to motion pictures.

In days of riding to Park Row the subway I often catalogued books passengers were reading. As librarians long ago discovered, people you never suspect read Scott, Coleridge, Shelley and Keats. I once comforted me to sit next to Theodore Dreiser, bent over a deliriant detective tale. It so happened, too, I saw the square-jawed Mayor Gaynor chuckling at Epictetus and reported it to my city editor, William Wirt Mills. He in turn reported to a news association. And such is the ding-dong of the press, every paper in the town was evoking Gaynor to Epictetus quotations for each twist in municipal affairs.

Neal Coward, before showing off for a leisurely bathehouse cruise home, pip-pipped that an Englishman laughs at a joke thrice—when he hears it, when it's explained and when he understands. The American laughs but once—and that's merely to be polite, for he has almost heard it before.

From an Oregon weekly: "McIntyre's picture in a Portland paper suggests something but we cannot say exactly say what."

Verne Porter has always said the handle of a basement table umbrella.

Trade Barrier Myths

By Merryle Stanley Rukcyser

Sentimental theory will clash with unemotional trade statistics as envoys from sixty-six nations swap ideas at the international monetary and trade conference, which opened at London yesterday.

One seemingly holy purpose is the removal of trade barriers. At first blush the proposal seems indisputably wise and equitable.

It doubtless is excellent advice for the smaller European nations which in reality belong in larger economic units which run across national boundaries.

Ever since we have been operating as a nation, however, we of the United States have been guided by this principle of absence of trade barriers.

As is well known, we have no trade barriers among the forty-eight sovereign states which constitute the nation.

Since even in the peak years of 1927-29, exports represented only 4 per cent of our annual income, whereas the ratio in European countries ran from 20 to 40 per cent, it should be apparent that we perhaps have more to lose than other nations from Secretary Hull's naive enthusiasm for a universal lowering of tariff rates.

Even the so-called favorable balance of trade which we enjoyed in peak years was paid for with funds lent to foreign interests by Americans, and also by invisible imports in the form of tourist expenditures and other hidden items.

Even during the deepest point of the depression, we continued to import normal quantities of certain important imports, even though as a result of price declines their dollar value was greatly reduced.

A survey of ten leading import commodities, which in the aggregate constitute about half of the total, shows that in quantity there were increases in 1931, varying between 39 per cent in the case of tin and 1655 per cent in the case of newspaper as compared with pre-war imports, as determined by the average figures between 1910-1914. Similarly all except cane sugar, which was affected by increased home plantings of beet sugar, showed increases on a quantitative basis as compared with the period 1921-25, which was regarded as approximately normal. Newspaper was up 74 per cent; raw silk 61 per cent; crude rubber 65 per cent; vegetable oils 47 per cent. Moreover, on the same basis, silk, coffee, rubber, oil seeds, and cocoa were imported in larger quantities in 1931 than in 1930.

Our conceptions on this subject have been warped by failing to allow for price changes and because of a disposition to regard the abnormal boom period as normal.

In connection with our six most important items of import, the quantity of coffee imported in 1932 actually showed a gain over 1929, whereas imports of the other five declined from 14.9 per cent to 39.2 per cent, which is not disproportionate to the decline in domestic production and distribution.

As one gets down to brass tacks, talk about removal of trade barriers tends to take on questionable meaning.

Our delegates to the London meeting should be cautioned to make no commitments which will tend to impair the standard of living at home.

Restoration of balanced prosperity entails increased concentration on the domestic market.

'Scotty From Death Valley'—Mystery of Two Decades

By EDWIN C. HILL

"Scotty from Death Valley"—he was a picture never to be forgotten by the millions of the press as we gathered to meet him in the old Waldorf a quarter of a century ago. A broad, square fellow, he reminded one of Tom Sharkey dressed up in a gray flannel shirt, with a red scarf, and a big black comb-over atop his large head. His high-heeled boots gave him a length to which his medium size did not entitle him. But what, we knew he was a wild man from the West when he belted out "Gimme a gallon of whiskey!" and when he mocked the tenderfoot who hesitated to take a drink of water on the side. That he had flashed upon the country like a comet is more than figurative language. He had been nothing but a local figure in the mining camp of the hot springs of California's Death Valley until the day in 1908 that he strode up to the Santa Fe offices in Los Angeles and asked for special non-stop train to Chicago. The station master stood aghast, but Scotty plunked down the $5000 called for, and off he went at a murderous clip for Chicago in a four-coach train, with Mrs. Scott, and his mongrel yellow dog, which sported a thousand-dollar collar, and ate from a silver bucket.

His train reached Chicago in 44 hours and 54 minutes, and I believe the time still stands as the record. When it pulled into the Loop, every window in the four-story hotel had eyes on the terrific pounding. Mrs. Scott was black and blue from the buffeting, and Scotty had tossed hundreds of silver dollars to the staring crowds who had gathered along the right of way.

From that time and for two decades to come he remained the champion mystery man of the S. A. He was known as "The Kentucky Kid" who had drifted to California with a Wild West show, and it was known that his wife was a woman who had been married to a supposedly fabulous wealthy nobody king. People said he had found a gold mine in Death Valley, saying $50,000 to the tin. Scotty never denied it, and the legend became accepted fact.

Only that the two years ago the world learned that Walter Scott's gold mine was a gentleman named Albert M. Johnson, multi-millionaire of Chicago, and the legend became a secret forever.

That mansion could not be kept a secret forever. Johnson is 60 now, and yet it does not begin to compare with that of his patron. Back in 1908, he was in the night of December 31, 1896. A horrid train wreck had taken place outside of Chicago. Albert Johnson lies trapped in the wreckage, crushed by the tortures of a broken back, and his father dead nearby him. They pulled the young man from the mass of twisted and mangled metal. The doctor said it would have been more merciful if he had perished; but he had the will to survive, and live he did to amass great wealth in the insurance business. Walter Scott came into his life in the low of a promoter who needed backing for Scotty's gold mine in Death Valley. The enormity of the situation flashed upon the slim, city-bred invalid. Here was a man bursting with health who sought only gold. Here was he bursting with gold and seeking only health.

They made their bargain. Scotty and his joke on the world and his life in Death Valley, and as his health was restored, he built there, quietly and gradually, a $2,000,000 mansion, a gold mine, a silver mine, a swimming pool, pipe organs and a private airplane. He approved Hollywood fashion for Scotty and himself and their families to enjoy, and the Indians to give Secret Counsel.
